

Hear an owl,
expect a chill

Malysh Publishers Moscow

For a long time people have been watching: wildlife. We observed and noticed the most interesting and important things for a person's life. It was noted, for example, that after the first rooster's cry "koo-ka-re-koo!" the sun rises, the morning begins. So they began to say: "Roosters morning zozup."

So there were different signs among the people.

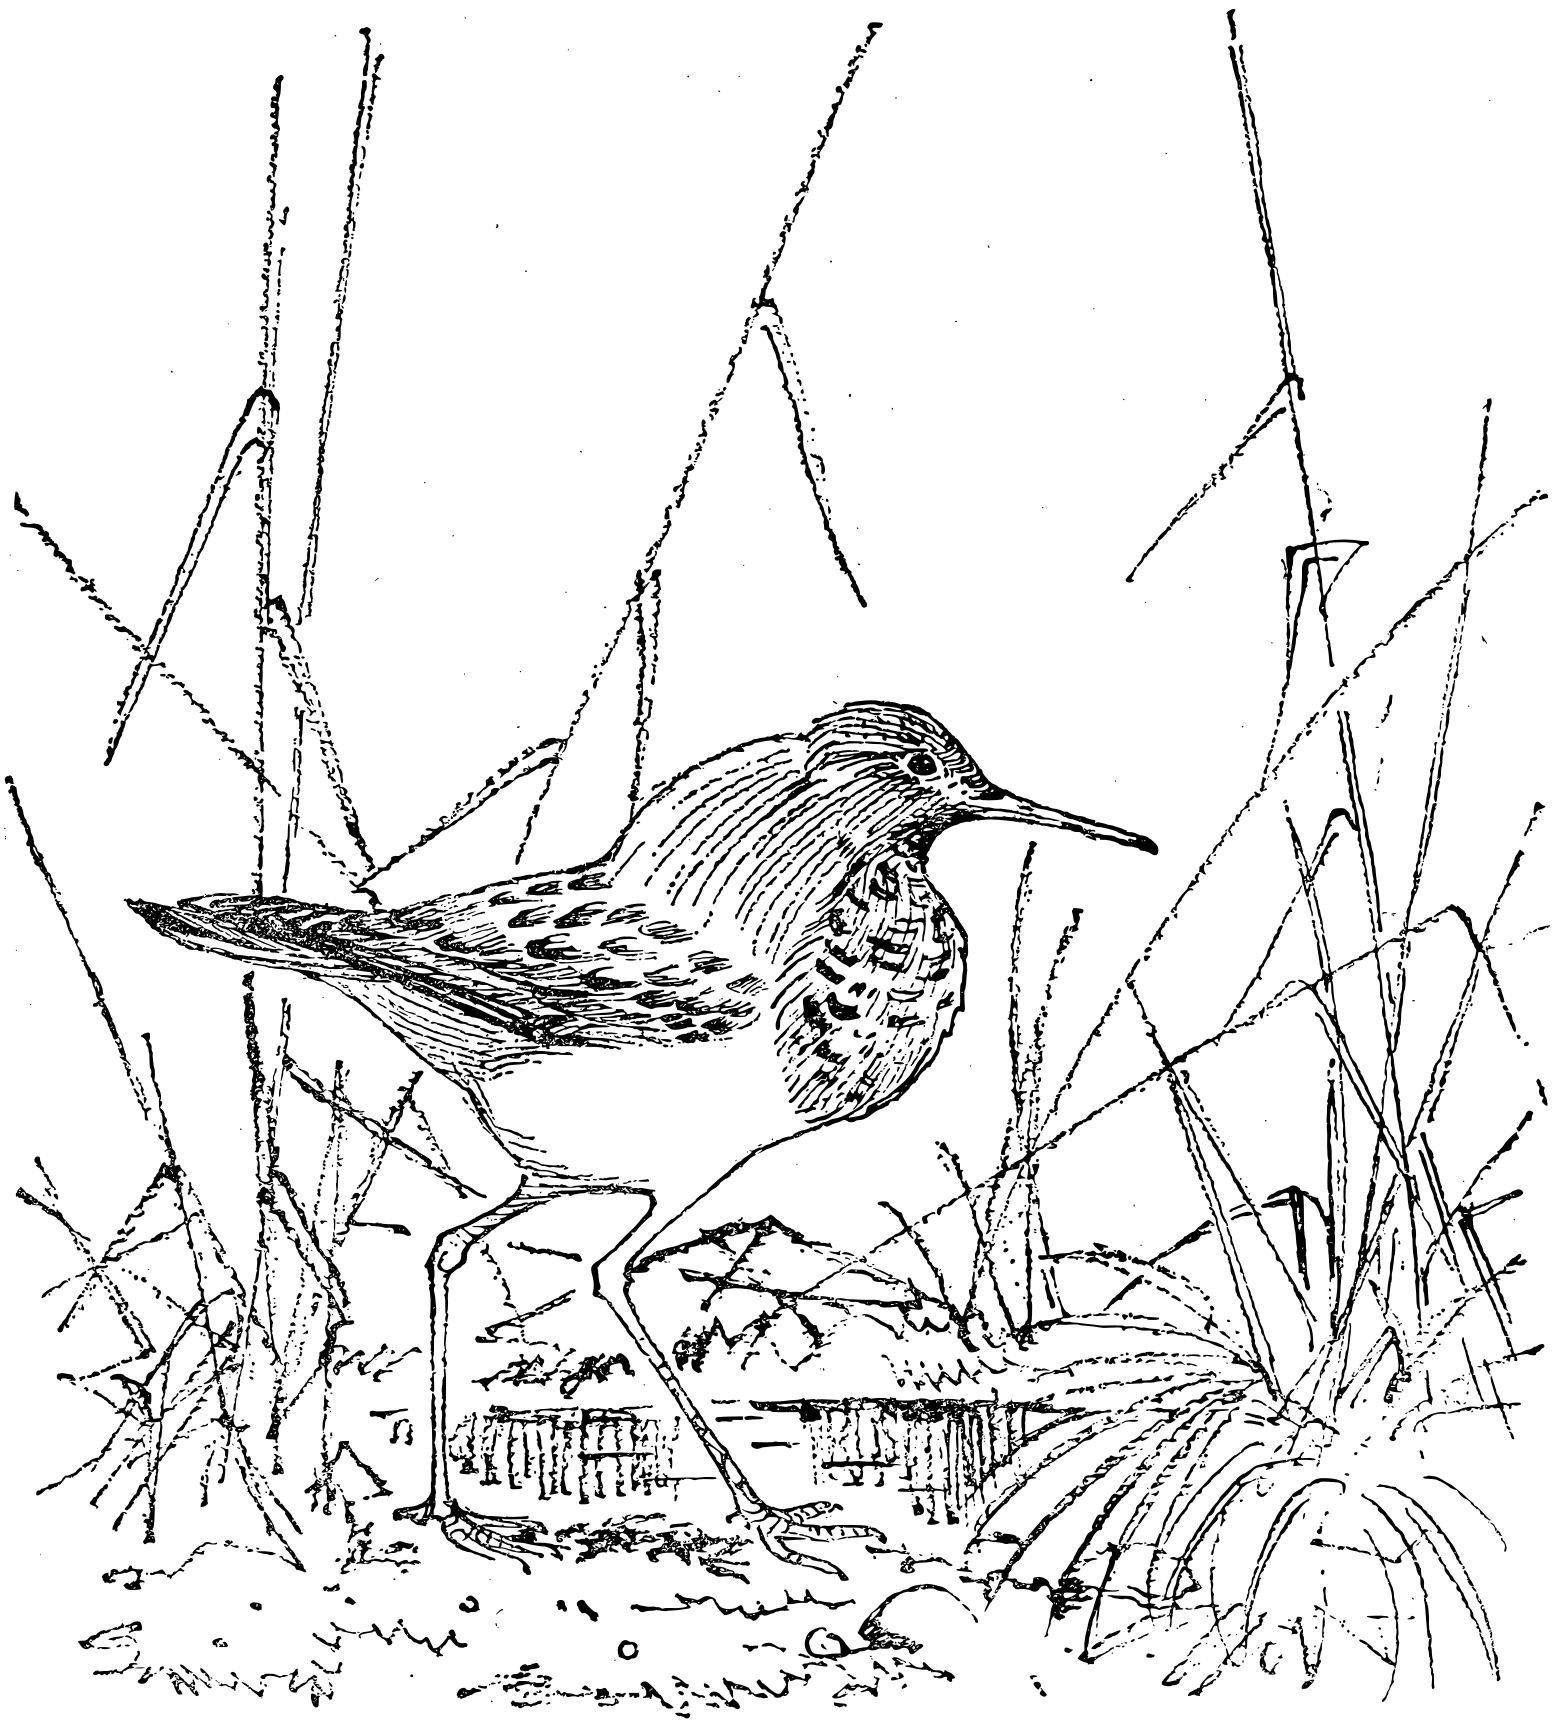

In this album, a bird is painted on each page, and under the picture you will read a sign related to the behavior of the bird. Read it and remember it. Color the pictures.

Hear an owl, expect a chill.

If a titmouse chirps in the morning, expect frost.

A sandpiper flew in from across the sea and brought spring out of the retreat.

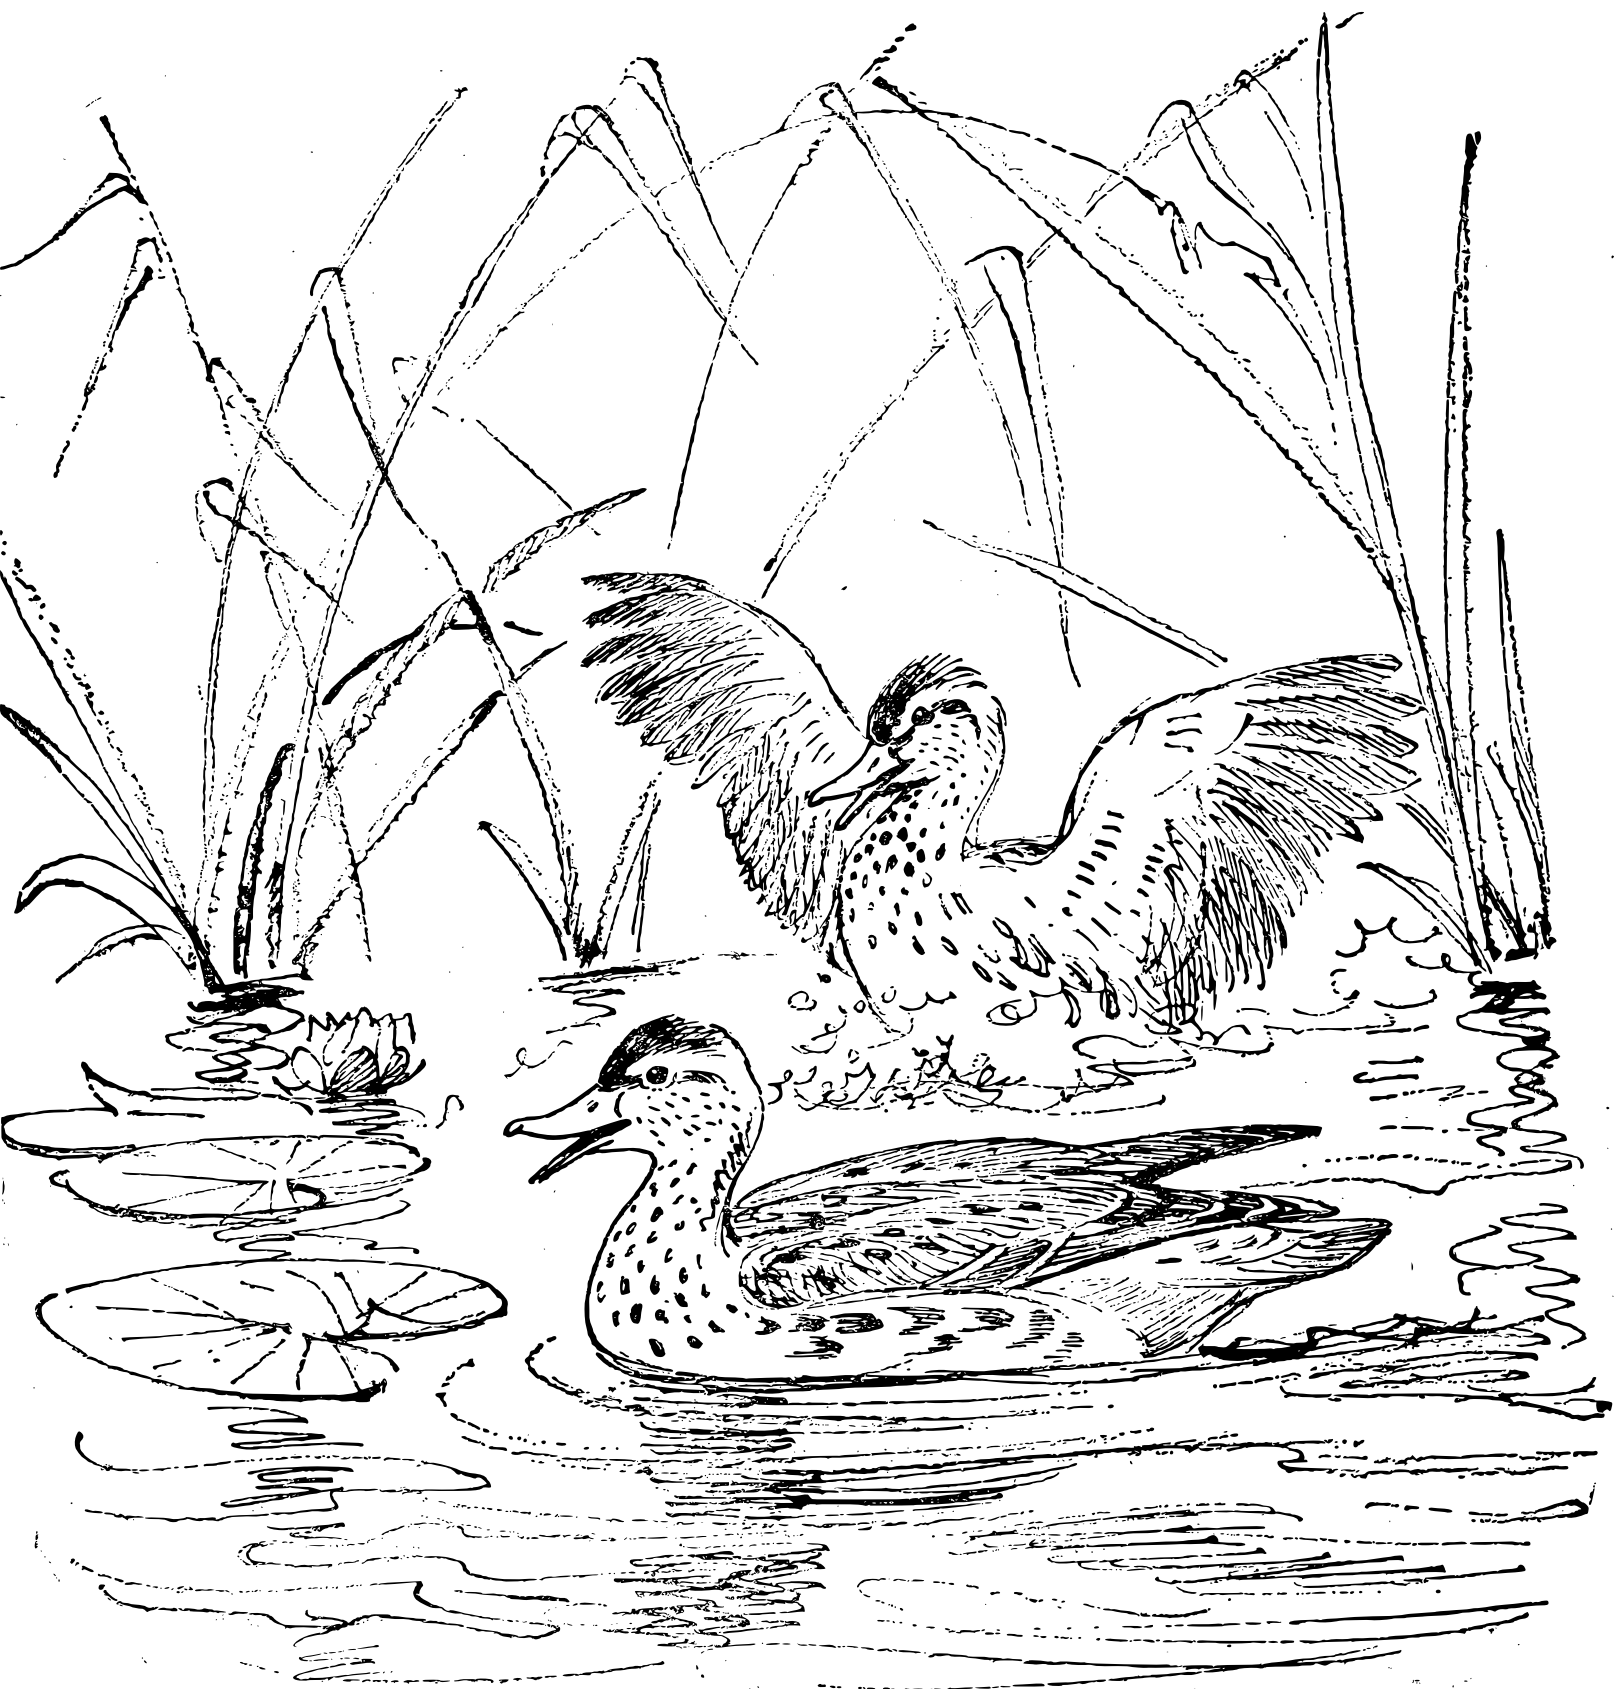

When it gets warm,
the grasshopper will come flying.

Skylarks are active in fine weather,
but sit puffed up – for a storm.

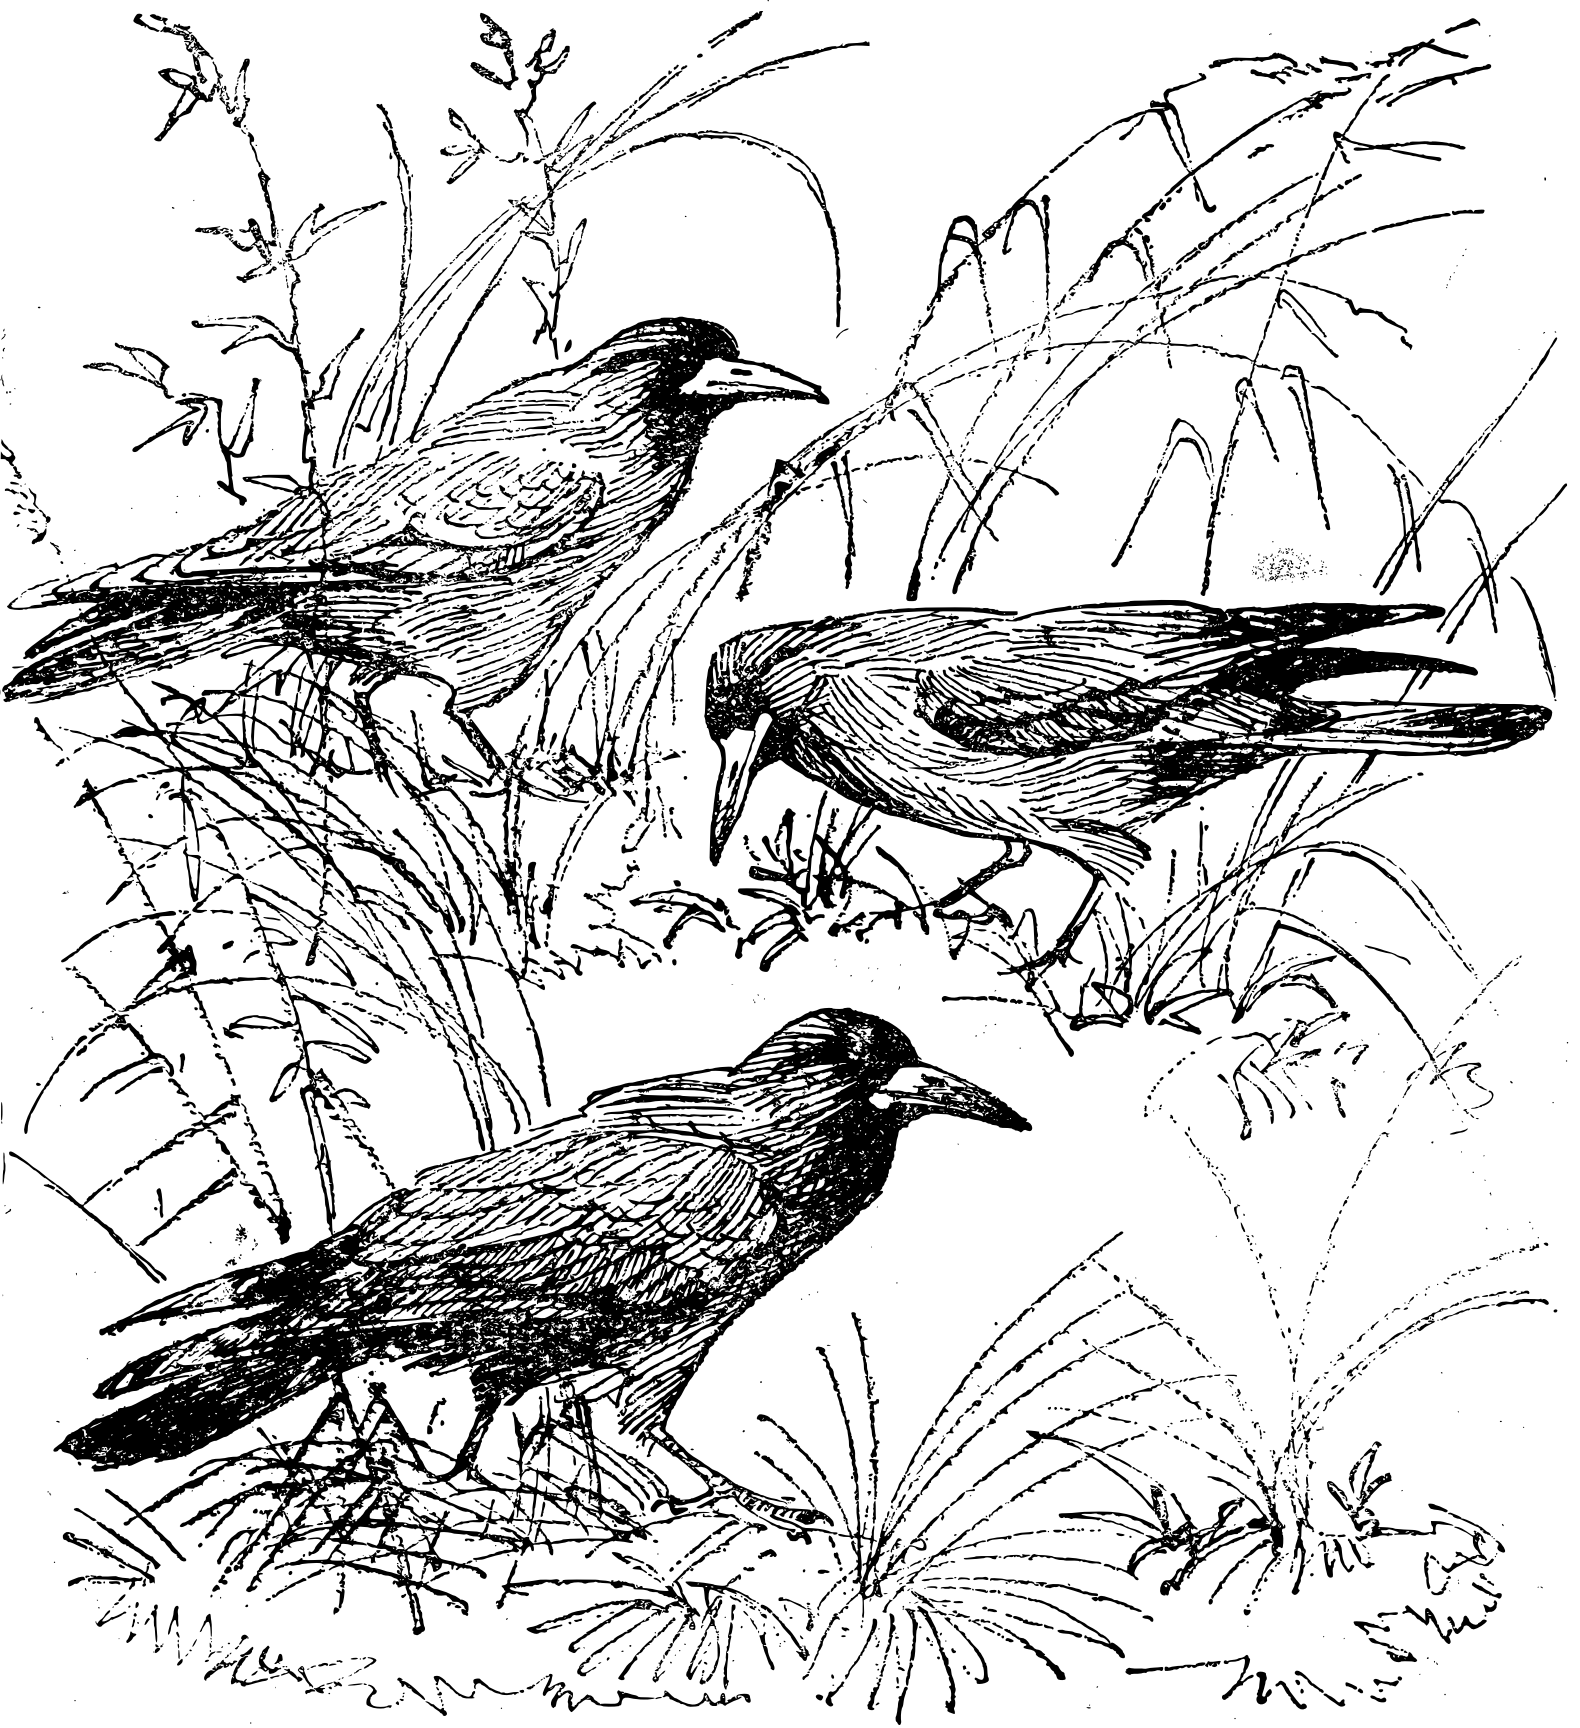

Plovers have been crying since yesterday
– for clear weather

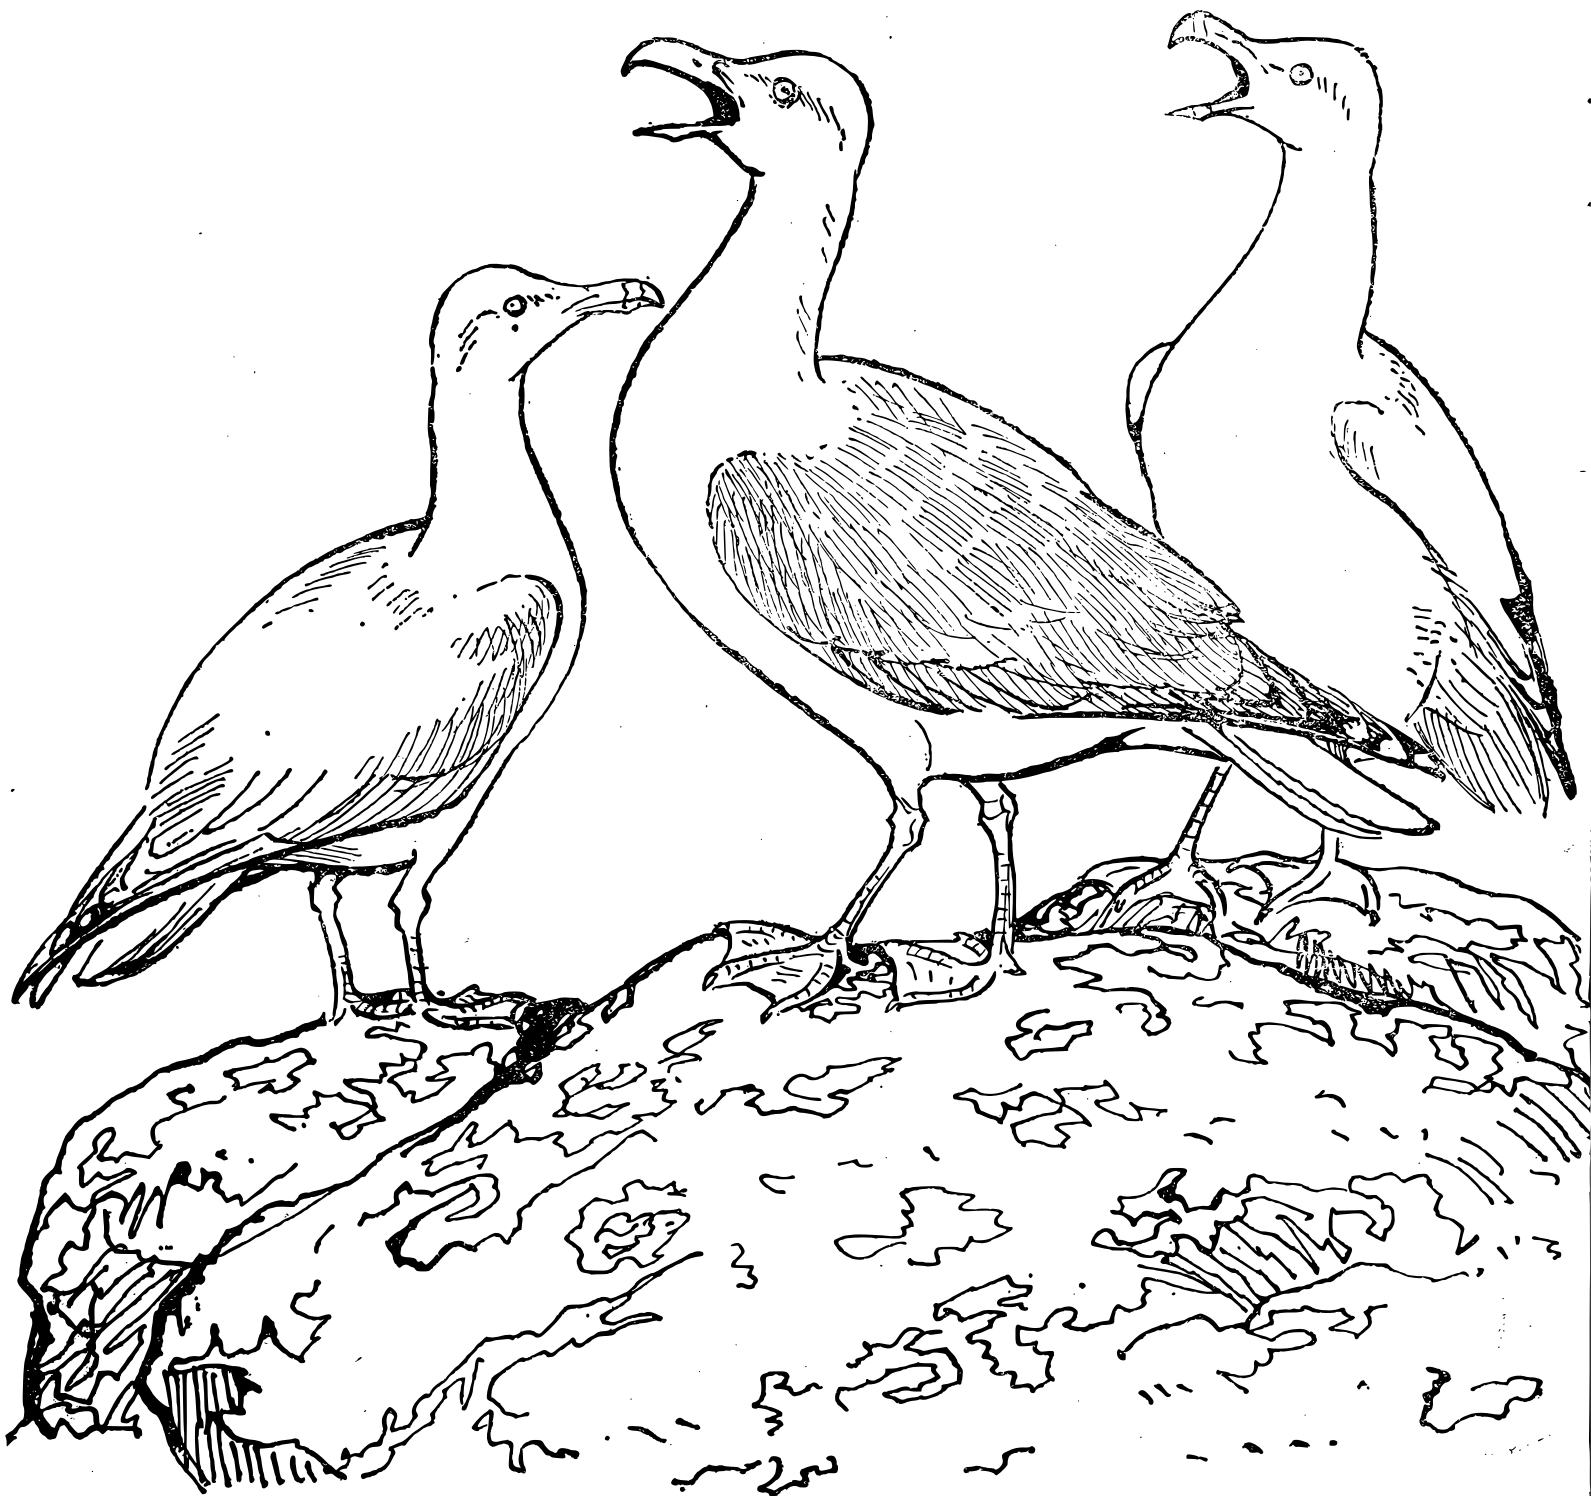

Ducks have become active – it will rain.

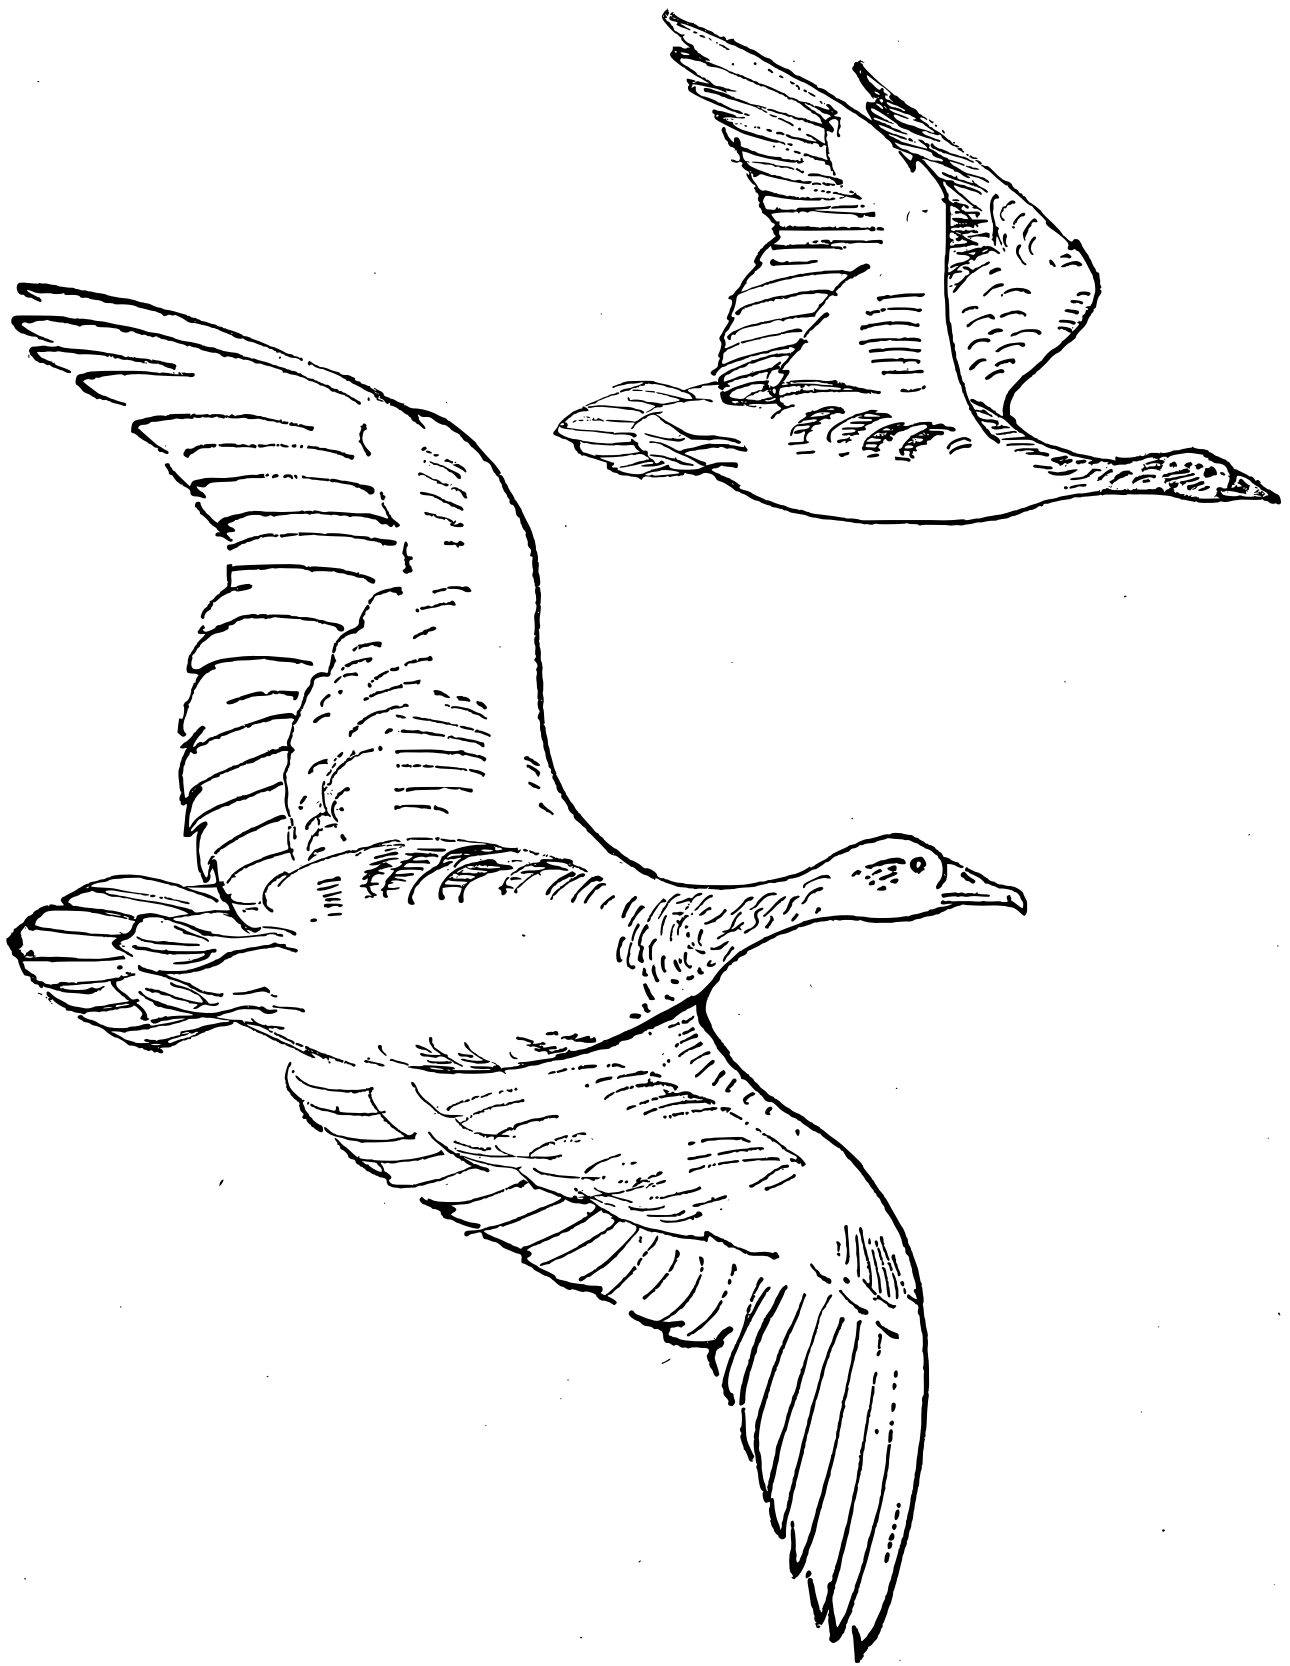

Quails in the field are loudly crying – before rain.

Rooks in summer 'graze' in the grass
– rain is coming soon

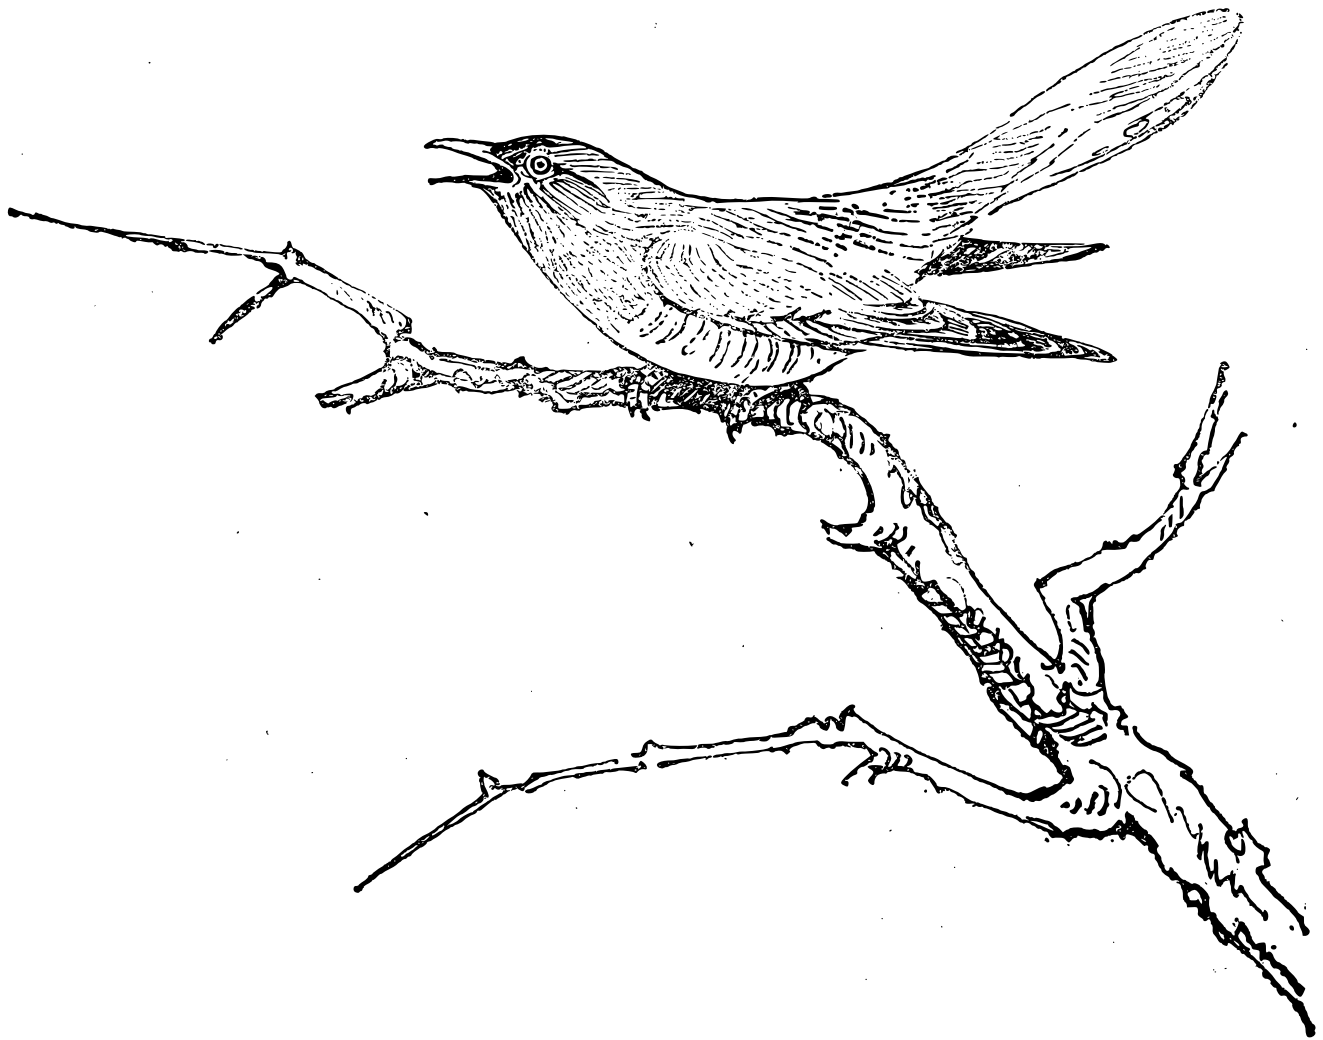

Seagulls gather on the shore and raise a ruckus

The swan flies to the snow (in late autumn), and the goose flies to the rain (in early autumn and spring).

Jackdaws gather in a crowd for the evening and shout — for clear weather.

The cuckoo cuckoos on a dry tree – for frost.
